Educator Preparation Programs Appeal Instructions
For Program Admission or Student Teaching Eligibility Decisions

A student who is denied program admission or not approved for student teaching may submit an appeal in accordance with these instructions. The initial denial or disapproval is presumed correct, and it is the student’s responsibility to demonstrate that the initial decision was incorrect, or that a reversal/exception is appropriate, and in the best interests of the student, the University, and the profession.

Appeals will be considered and determined by the Appeals Committee, a sub-committee of the educator preparation program committee. The Appeals Committee will consist of an odd number of faculty members, and will conduct business by simple majority rule. Except for those decision in which the appellant claims there has been an error by the University, the Appeals Committee may impose additional conditions or restrictions as part of its decision. Those conditions and restrictions may include, by way of example, additional mandatory sessions with advisors, requirements to take or re-take certain courses, and so forth. A student who fails to comply with applicable conditions or restrictions may be disenrolled from the program, or removed from student teaching opportunities. Appellate decisions may require approval by authorities other than the sub-committee, such as the Graduate School, the CEHS Graduate Studies Committee, or the Chair of a particular department, in which case the approval of the additional authority is a prerequisite to the sub-committee’s decision.

In-person appearances, including live witness testimony, are not permitted. The Appeals Committee will consider factors including, but not limited to: grades, scores on required or standardized tests, GPA, commitment to the profession, diversity of experiences, and so forth. The Appeals Committee will not consider factors related to any protected status, including age, sex, disability, national origin, religion, race, gender, etc. Students should note that while the Appeals Committee may have some discretion, decisions on program admission and student teaching eligibility are, to a very large degree, governed by standards imposed by the University’s various accrediting bodies. Those standards include minimum grades, minimum scores on tests, and so forth. The Appeals Committee will not approve a reversal or modification that would create a conflict with accreditation standards.

Deadlines:

Appeal packets for admission decisions must be submitted no later than twenty-eight days before the start of the intended program. Appeal packets for student teaching eligibility must be submitted no later than fourteen days before the proposed start of student teaching. Untimely appeals will not be considered.

Decisions: Decisions are final, and successive appeals of a single decision will only be considered if there has been a material change in circumstances. Students will be notified via email of the sub-committee’s decision. Approval of an appeal does not make the student eligible for an Ohio teaching license, which is issued by the state Department of Education and not by the University. Successive appeals of the same decision are not permitted unless there is a material change in circumstances. Students should not make academic plans on the presumption that an appeal will be successful.

Requirements: Appeals must be in writing and typed. Appeals must clearly state the basis for the appeal, and include all applicable documentation. Appellants are responsible for meeting all deadlines and other obligations related to the pertinent admission / student teaching experience. Appeals packets that do not include the following minimum documentation will not be returned, and will be automatically rejected:

1. A properly completed WSU Educator Preparation Programs Appeal Form (typed);
2. A personal statement explaining why the decision should be reversed or modified, and discussing all of the factors that the appellant wants the committee to know or consider; and
3. Documentation in support of the student’s position. This may include, without limitation, transcripts, test scores, proof of mailing/submission of required documentation, etc.

The student may, but is not required to, submit one letter of professional recommendation. The Appeals Committee will not consider a professional recommendation from an appellant’s personal friend or family member.

It is the appellant’s responsibility to ensure that packets are received on or before the deadline. Packets may be hand-delivered or mailed to 310 Allyn Hall, 3640 Colonel Glenn Highway, Dayton, Ohio 45435, or transmitted by email (in a single .PDF file) to cehs-epp-appeal@wright.edu.
