School university partnerships in general and partner schools specifically are the essential vehicles through which we may bring about simultaneous renewal.

John Goodlad

Conference Committee

Kevin Bell, Superintendent
Trotwood-Madison City Schools

Brian Boyd, Associated Professor, Teacher Education
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Betsy Chadd, Director of Curriculum & Gifted Services
Bellbrook Sugarcreek City Schools

Rusty Clifford, Superintendent
West Carrollton City Schools

Ed Gibbons, Director: Business Affairs/Classified Personnel
Fairborn City Schools

Charlotte Harris, Dean
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Joseph Keferl, Associated Dean
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Anna Lyon, Associate Professor, Teacher Education
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Nancy Mack, Associate Professor, English
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Jack McKnight (Chair), Partnership Coordinator
WSU Office of Partnerships and Field Experiences

Yoko Miura, Assistant Professor in Leadership Studies
WSU College of Education and Human Services

William Slattery, Associate Professor, Environmental Science
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Sheri Stover, Assistant Professor in Leadership Studies
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Ryan Taylor, Coordinator: Internship/Community Engagement
WSU College of Education and Human Services

Jim Tomlin, Chair of Department of Teacher Education
WSU College of Education and Human Services

“School university partnerships in general and partner schools specifically are the essential vehicles through which we may bring about simultaneous renewal.”

John Goodlad

Location:
Allyn Hall
Wright State University
Confrence Website:
https://www.wright.edu/wsunerconference
NNER and Partnership

As an active participant in the National Network for Educational Renewal, the College of Education and Human Services at Wright State University has developed strong partnership agreements with nine K-12 school districts and the Dayton Regional STEM School. In addition, numerous community organizations are partnering with CEHS through the Professional Development Community. The goals of these relationships are to develop excellent teacher candidates and rehabilitation practitioners, to improve K-12 student achievement, to enhance achievement of consumer independence and to encourage “simultaneous renewal” among the participants.

NNER founder, John Goodlad, describes the importance of these partnerships: “School university partnerships in general and partner schools specifically are the essential vehicles through which we may bring about simultaneous renewal.” His reference to “simultaneous renewal” emphasizes Goodlad’s belief that collaboration within the partnership structure will result in a synthesis of new and innovative ideas; ultimately the key to improving the educational system. The Wright State University Network for Educational Renewal Conference encourages this collaboration among the participating school districts, community organizations and the university on an annual basis.

Conference Kick Off Speaker

Marcy Keifer Kennedy
President
National Association for Professional Development Schools

Marcy Keifer Kennedy holds a B.S. and M.Ed. from The Patton College of Education at Ohio University. She currently serves as the Director of the Center for PDS Partnerships in The Patton College of Education. Kennedy oversees the operations of eleven active PDS partnerships, each with a unique structure and organization. The central purpose of the Center has been to foster and support outreach activities that connect the College with regional schools and to partner together to positively impact P-12 student learning. In 2014 Marcy was elected President-elect of the National Association for Professional Development Schools (NAPDS) and is currently serving as the NAPDS President.